

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Partial data related to information data is received, image data corresponding to the received 5 partial data is generated by sequentially processing the received partial data, and the generated image data is output to a display unit. Before output of the image data corresponding to the partial data to the display unit is completed, reception of the information 10 data is started. Then, image data corresponding to the information data is generated by processing the received information data, and image data to be displayed on said display unit is switched to the image data corresponding to the information data from the 15 image data corresponding to the partial data after the reception of the information data is started.